

Pick a fight with somebody your own size.

Powerful special interest groups working with a few politicians want to eliminate Electronic Bingo as a critical source of charitable fundraising. This is happening even though bingo was authorized by California voters over 30 years ago.

Last year, Electronic Bingo raised $42 million for 26 local charities including United Cerebral Palsy, Society for the Blind, Stanford Home for Children, and WIND Youth Services among many others.

Let's not make a political football out of our children or our charities. We urge our Legislators and our Governor to join the millions of Californians who believe that Electronic Bingo is fundraising worth fighting for. To find out how you can help save charity bingo, please go to our Web site.
